

Abstract

The present invention relates to stable calibrators and controls that can be used in ligand-binding assays and methods for making said calibrators and controls.